Getting Started

- Initial Contact: Individuals and families can begin accessing services by contacting LightHouse Social Service Centers directly by phone or visiting their main office during regular business hours. Staff will provide information about available programs and help determine next steps based on the individual's needs.
- Intake and Assessment: Clients complete an intake and needs assessment to identify housing barriers, service needs, and program eligibility. This process helps match each client with the most appropriate housing, behavioral health, and supportive services program.
- Referral Requirements: Some programs require referrals from partner agencies such as behavioral health providers, workforce development agencies, probation or parole, or public assistance case workers. LightHouse works closely with community partners to coordinate referrals and ensure continuity of care.
- Application and Documentation: Clients complete program applications and provide required documentation, which may include identification, proof of homelessness or housing instability, income verification, veteran status, disability verification, or justice system involvement, depending on program requirements.
- Program Enrollment and Case Management: Once eligibility is confirmed, clients are enrolled into the appropriate program and assigned a case manager who provides ongoing support with housing navigation, employment services, benefits enrollment, healthcare access, and long-term stabilization planning.
